CALL FOR PAPERS

Conference: Economic and social context of domestic violence

Hybrid, 7 March 2022

Keynote lecture: Prof. Bilge Erten, Northeastern University

The COVID-19 pandemic has amplified the academic and policy interest in the causes and consequences of domestic violence. With this in mind the FREE Network will host a Conference at the Stockholm Institute of Transition Economics entitled:

Economic and social context of domestic violence

The Conference will combine presentations of academic papers and contributions from policy makers and interest groups. Both applied and theoretical contributions are welcome.

We invite extended abstracts (1-2 pages) and expect that authors will have approximately 20 minutes for their presentations. Online submission is open via site@hhs.se, please type the subject box with Call for papers submission: Economic and social context of domestic violence.

The deadline is 15 February 2022. Notifications are expected by 20 February 2022.

The Conference is organised as part of the Forum for Research on Gender Economics \(FROGEE\) supported by the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency \(Sida\).

The FREE Network would also like to announce a call for papers for a special issue of the Baltic Journal of Economics focused on the topic of the conference.
